SPEAKS TODAY ON GOVERNMENT R. R. OPERATION

J. J. Donohue, General L. and N. Claim Attorney, Appeals to Kiwanians to Help in Fight for Private Ownership

CLUB VOTES TO THANK H. H. ASHER FOR ROAD WORK

J. J. Donohue, general claim attorney and instructive address before the railway, made an unusually interesting for the Louisville and Nashville Kiwanis Club today on "Private Against Government Operation of Industries." Mr. Donohue, who was here last September at the Harvest Festival, was here today as the guest of S. M. Reams, chairman of the luncheon.

Mr. Donohue began by explaining that he had been in the L. and N. office at Louisville during the 26 months of government operation of railroads during the war and that he knew any return to this regime would be a real calamity. "I am a staunch and open advocate of private operation of private interests," he declared indicating that the government had enough to do to look after its regular business competently. He explained, however, that the railroads were never foolish enough to mind regulative legislation.

Explaining the real menace of this matter, Mr. Donohue declared that there were now in the new Congress four bills already introduced by advocates of government ownership, two in regard to the Interstate Commerce Commission and one asking repeal of the 1921 Transportation Act. In passing, he spoke a few words in regard to Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, the author of two of these bills, saying that the policies he and those like him advocate, were only a step from nationalism of all industries and eventual communism.

"The railroads have been the football of politics for twenty-five years," he declared, "and now they ask only a breathing spell to work out their own salvation under the 1921 Transportation Act, and with things left to the Interstate Commerce Commission as they now stand." He said they had not been given a fair trial since the war and that they had never made 6 per cent on their investment since that time.

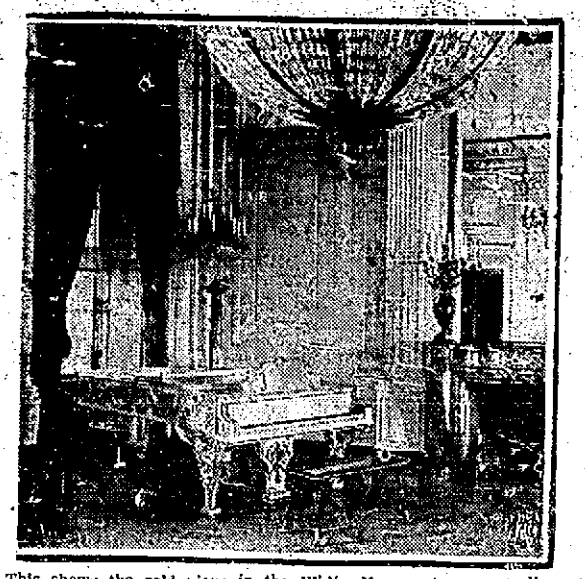
In closing, Mr. Donohue spoke of the L. and N. which he characterized as distinctly a southern railroad, working for the south. He said it was chartered in Kentucky and spent most of its money here, most particularly in this section of the state. He finished by asking the support of the people here in the fight against this government ownership proposition and by saying that he knew there was only one southern Congressman, that, Huddleson of Birmingham, Ala., who was not with them.

In addition to this principal address, P. M. Parsons, chairman of the Christmas program committee, announced a Christmas entertainment for all children in town under 10 years of age, to be given the Monday afternoon before Christmas, details of which will be announced later.

On motion of Judge J. F. Bosworth, it was unanimously voted to have A. P. Liebig, as president of the Middlesboro Kiwanis Club, write a letter to H. H. Asher, expressing this club's appreciation of the work he has done in procuring roads for this section.

The club members were reminded of the election of new officers next Thursday, at which time a ballot box to receive votes will be placed just outside the entrance to the grill room. J. W. Bradner acted as president in the absence of A. P. Liebig.

Where Game Will Be Held



This shows the gold piano in the White House where, according to advices from Washington, a game of solitaire will be played between Mrs. Coolidge, wife of the president, and Frank G. Hall of Sanbornville, N. H. When President Harding was elected Hall predicted to Mrs. Coolidge she would some day be the "first lady of the land." She replied: "If I am, I'll teach you how to play solitaire on the gold piano of the White House." Now she insists upon paying the forfeit.

ADULTS AS WELL AS CHILDREN TO BE BENEFITED BY EMPTY STOCKING FUND

Not only will the children be benefited by the Christmas Stocking fund, but also others who, through no fault of their own, have become impoverished and who endure actual physical suffering from cold and hunger unless aided by people of Middlesboro. The first subscription was brought in this morning.

Miss Wilhelmine Marx, public health nurse, tells of an aged woman who has a sick husband dependent on her small earnings. The woman herself is in bad health and able to earn very little at occasional work in a local factory. The couple received benefits from the Empty Stockings fund last year and their condition is even worse this year. This is only one of the many cases where families can be aided by the public contributions.

Then there are dozens of bright-eyed youngsters whose parents are barely able to provide the necessities of life who can be made happy on Christmas and for many days to come by the Empty Stocking Fund. Surely these children should be comfortably clothed and have a good Christmas dinner during this season when not only the spirit of "Peace and Good Will" but also that of charity changes the very atmosphere.

There are some professional beggars in Middlesboro, people in poor circumstances who have opportunities but never try to better their condition. Careful investigations will be made and this class of people, unless in actual hunger, will not be beneficiaries of the fund. There are so many cases of worthy people who are poverty stricken to expend this money on that there will not be enough for the chronic mendicant.

Those wishing to join the Empty Stocking Club may send their contributions to the Daily News or to Miss Marx and mention of these will be made in the Daily News from day to day, the name of the donor being withheld where it is requested.

PREPARING BILL FOR CITY SEWER SYSTEM

Measure Framed by Judge Anderson Will Apply to All Third-Class Cities in State

The bill that Judge T. G. Anderson will frame for the legislature, empowering the city of Middlesboro to construct and maintain sewers, will be equally applicable to all other third-class cities in Kentucky. The attorney will begin to prepare the bill soon so that it may be introduced into the legislature which convenes in January.

In view of the fact that other cities of Middlesboro's class, those having populations from 8,000 to 20,000 will be affected, it is but natural to anticipate some difficulties in the passage of the bill which will receive the attention of the committee on municipalities. It is very likely the some amendments will be urged.

The bill will make it possible for the improvement to be paid for on the ten years payment plan. The expense of the construction will be entirely on the property owners, of course, though this will not amount to a very great figure. Provisions for meeting the expense of superficial area sewer construction, that is, of sharing the expense of the main lines which carry a bulk of the sewage, will be made.

On the whole, the legal part of the work will be a very particular and highly technical job, but there is little doubt that it will have favorable results. After the bill is passed, the question of actual construction of the sewers, the details of the work and the area to be affected will be left to the municipal government.

BUS LINE STARTS TO RUN LENGTH CUMBERLAND AVE.

A bus line was put in operation on Cumberland avenue today by Jeff Moyers. The car which has a capacity of sixteen passengers runs from Avondale avenue, East End, to Twenty-eighth street, West End. The News Stand will be its headquarters and passengers will be carried from there to either end of town for five cents. A schedule will be arranged later.

COLD WEATHER WILL HELP COAL DEMAND

More Business For the Mines Now—Production Most Since 1918.

As usual colder weather has strengthened the demand for soft coal. Consequently a larger coal business is being transacted, a larger part of which is being moved on a contract basis, at fair prices. In case of new business which does not carry with it the guarantee of future shipment the prices are much lower. Companies doing a stabalized business, however, appear to be showing good returns.

The course of stock since September 1 is not accurately known but the available information indicates that production has exceeded consumption and that reserves have increased. Production, therefore, has not yet been affected to any great extent. The total output of soft coal in October is no westimated at 40,171,000 tons, an increase over September of 2,955,000 tons or 6 per cent. During both the 1rst and second weeks in November, however, the total weekly output was below the average weekly output of 10,800,000 tons in the four weeks in October, and preliminary reports for the week ending November 17 indicate that total production for the that week will not be much over 10,000,000.

The average daily production during the past six weeks has hovered around the 1,800,000 ton mark which is slightly below that of 1922. At no time, however has the rate this year dropped below 1,600,000 tons per day. Production during the 1rst 226 workong days of 1923 was approximately 478,000,000 tons, which places 1923 far ahead of the recent years of depression and only 32,000,000 tons behind the record year, 1918.—Monthly Business Review.

NUMBER FEDERAL CASES INCREASES

Prohibition Violations Form Large Part of Work—Rum Smuggling Big Problem

The Associated Press.

Washington, Dec., —Litigation over violations of federal laws is on the increase in the United States, according to the annual report of Attorney General Daugherty made today to Congress.

In a volume replete with statistics of the government's work in law enforcement, against criminals ranging from big business to bootleggers, the Attorney General and his staff detailed increases in prosecutions, civil as well as criminal, running the gaunt of federal statutes. Increases in convictions also were recited in the story of the work of the Department of Justice to secure observance of law.

Prohibition cases formed a large part of the Department's work, but there were large increases also in prosecuting violations of white slave, war, public land, postal, banking and other federal regulations. Activity also was reported in pressing the war frauds cases.

Under the national prohibition act alone, Mrs. Mabel Walker Wilebrandt, Assistant Attorney General in charge of prohibition and tax cases reported 40,021 criminal and 4,109 civil cases were begun during the last fiscal year, an increase of 15,350 over the previous year. Federal courts, she said, were unable to keep abreast of the number of cases brought, although 22,052 criminal and 4,964 civil cases left pending.

"Rapidity of disposition failed quite to keep pace with the filing, said Mrs. Willerbrandt, "but with the help of extra judges provided in different districts the congested conditions of dockets is slowly being remdied."

Rum smuggling, Mrs. Willerbrandt reported added, is "the most gigantic criminal problem the United States ever faced on the high seas." She said the Coast Guard was not adequate with present equipment to patrol the long Atlantic and Pacific coasts effectually, and reiterated statistics of liquor transactions in the Bahama Islands indicating extensive smuggling into this country.

Mrs. Willebrandt also commented on the disparity between sentences imposed by various federal courts in prohibition cases.

"In many districts," her report said, "the variance between sentences imposed for violations of the national prohibition act and those imposed for convictions of other federal crimes is striking. Some courts which exact maximum penalties in other federal crimes are reluctant to place heavy punishment on prohibition violators."

War fraud prosecutions, the Attorney General's report stated, have been pushed vigorously. Hundreds of cases are under investigation, with $3,232,000 already collected are judgments of $1,225,000 additional secured. About 100 cases involving $64,237,000, exclusive of the Chemical Foundation suit at Wilmington, Del., now are pending in the courts, with 34 indictments already returned.

Pioneer work in the war frauds section has been accomplished, the report said, although much time to bring the cases to conclusion will be required. Compromise settlements are being made in a number of cases, the report said, with realizations from this source already totalling $3,708,000.

H. S. BASKETBALL PRACTICE DAILY

Qualifying Games to Select Team Soon—New Uniforms Will Be Bought

Basketball practice continues daily at the high school, a large number of students taking part in the sport. The qualifying games the process of which the most proficient players will be selected to make the school teams will be played early next year, Coach John T. Kilpatrick stated today.

New uniforms have been bought for the players out of the athletic fund. The athletic finances, though final check-up has not been made on the proceeds of the last football game, are reported to be in good shape.

Church teams have not begun practice at the high school gymnasium yet, though these are expected to begin training there soon.

Mrs. Stanley Baldwin Real Partner to Prime Minister

LONDON, Dec. 12.—"Politices do not ruin my husband's sweet disposition."

Stanley Baldwin, just emerged from a gruelling, discouraging test election for vindication or defeat of his premiership and protection program, gets this tribute from his wife. Quietly, convincingly, simply she repeated to me her confidence in her husband.

It was before the general elections that I went to see Mrs. Baldwin, just to satisfy for myself and acquaint our reader, what kind of a woman the wife of one of Great Brittain's greatest men can be.

The dark, drizzly day was not the kind to make dreary and dismal Downing street look any better. But I felt good when I came into a woman's boudoir, elegantly arranged with antique furnishings and, best of all, a cheerful fireplace heaped with fragrant burning logs.

A good looking woman of middle age and medium height rose to meet me. She was wrapped in a carmine colored gown of beaded silk. A long rope of pearls loosely encircled her throat. She put timid me at ease by saying:

"Please do not be alarmed by my attire. It just happens I am to sit for a painting."

"And you, known to be one of England's busiest women?" I gasped. "I wonder you have time to sit".

Home Theories

"Well, I haven't much time," she admitted—the election was so close at hand and she was in the midst of the campaign.

Yet she had time to expound to me some of her theories.

First, that a wife, if convinced her husband's policies are good policies, should support him in every way.

Second, that a wife's fundamental duty is to make a home. Mrs. Baldwin has two boys and four girls and she sees to it that wherever they live is first of all a home.

Third, that the wife must see that her husband gets his needed recreation

MRS STANLEY BALDWIN

Which is why she insisted that her husband, while premier, spent his week ends at Chequers, the country home given the government for use of all British prime ministers.

Always Happy

"Mr. Baldwin," said she to me, "has been in politics practically all the time we have been married—about thirty years—and we have never had a quarrel. Some women say they don't want their husbands in politics because of its effect upon their temperament. My husband has remained unchanged."

"Maybe you have largely helped keep his temper sweet," I ventured.

"Well—a little perhaps," she said, "but not agreat deal. He is just that kind of man."

A footman appeared, announcing the portrait painter had arrived.

"Some noted artist?" I asked.

"Oh, no," Mrs. Baldwin replied, "just a young woman who is making a start. She seemed to want me to sit for her and I figure it does no harm to help out, or give a lift if you can."

MERCHANTS TO HOLD IMPORTANT MEETING

Rebate Question, Rating Cards, Many Vital Matters to Be Settled—Full Attendance Urged

The meeting of the Merchants' Association scheduled for 7:30 tonight at the Elks Home will be one of the most important in the history of the organization, according to S. M. Reams, president. He urges all members to be present so that questions in which all merchants and other business men are interested may be discussed.

The question of rebating fares to credit rating cards and others of out of town shoppers, the merchants' vital importance are expected to be taken up and settled.

The approach of the holidays assures a great stimulation in all lines of business and the merchants can best handle the situation by combining their strength. As this is probably the last meeting that will be held before Christmas, it is important that all the members attend.

MINES DEPARTMENT MUST HAVE FUNDS

State Inspector Says Coal Workers Can Not Be Protected Without Appropriation.

The Associated Press

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. —The state department of mines cannot protect coal miners in Kentucky unless it is furnished with sufficinet appropriation to carry out its work, H. E. James, state inspector and examiner, declared today.

Mr. James, who recommends further appropriation to carry on the work of the department in his biennial report recently filed with the governor, added:

"In my report made two years ago on this department, I expressed the opinion that the appropriation was not sufficient to carry out the work of the department as required by law.

"I am still of the same opinion."

Mr. James said that he based his opinion upon reports made by assistant inspectors in charge of the eight districts of the state, so divided by the mine department.

One inspector reports that he made 123 inspections in a year's time in his district in which there were 20 mines, that he should have made 276 visits to live up to the requirements of the law, providing for examination three times a year, Mr. James added.

This inspector said his reports show 33 fatal accidents in the district but that "it was not the fault of the inspector as he could not visit the mines often enough to keep in touch with the dangerous practices that existed," according to Mr. James' indings.

Another inspector states that there were 96 mines in his district, that he made 125 inspections, and that there were 37 fatal accidents in his district, Mr. James declared.

Motorcycle Shop Prospercus

Besides Mr. Colson, two mechanics are employed at the shop doing repair work on motorcycles. Repair work on the latter amounts to a considerable figure.

JURY REPORTS DEADLOCK MRS. WALTERS TRIAL

Prison Desperado's Widow, Charged With Conspiracy Murder in Eddyville Prison Riot—Taken to Paducah

HAS NO STATEMENT TO MAKE ON JURY'S REPORT

By Associated Press.

PADUCAH, Dec. 13.—Mrs. Lillian Walters tried yesterday at Eddyville on a charge of conspiracy murder in connection with the prison riot there several weeks ago was placed in the county jail here today. She said her feelings could not be put into words when the jury reported deadlock in her case. "Nobody in the world wants a sentence," she said.

LOUISVILLE WILL NOT ENTERTAIN PART YCONVENTION

Louisville, Ky., Dec. —Louisville's chance of entering a convention of one or the other of the major political parties, at first loomed large, but to day are nill.

It developed that Louisville would have to guarantee an immense fund for expenses, in short buy the convention, according to Harry G. Evans, managing director of the local convention league. This sum, quoted as high as $300,000, would go to finance the convention, with the amount left over going to the party's campaign fund.

"Louisville interests, interested in a political convention, are equally divided between the two parties and naturally no member of one party would care to give his money to a convention fund, knowing that part of it was almost sure to be used in fighting for the election of his political opponents," he said.

SCARLET FEVER EPIDEMIC ABOUT RUN ITS COURSE

Report that the scarlet feror epidemic has practically disappeared in Middlesboro is made by Miss Wilhelmine Marx, public health nurse. This splendid condition has doubtless been brought about by the vigorous campaign which she and Dr. Hays, county health officers, waged against it.

Only two cases of diphtheria have been reported here this year, Miss Marx stated, and there appears to be no further danger from this disease.

RENEWED EFFORTS MADE FOR PARK

Robsion Reintroduces Bill For Establishment "Lincoln National Park"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Representative Robsion of the eleventh district, the mountain section of southeast Kentucky, has reintroduced the bill that failed of passage in the last congress for the creation of Lincoln National park, embracing parts of Bell county, Kentucky, Lee county, Virginia, and Claiborne county, Tennessee, and including historic Cumberland Gap and Pinnacle mountain.

The bill authorizes the government to accept donations of land in the vicinity of the junction of the three states, as proposed by citizens of that section and provides for the improvement and maintenance of the property as a national park.

In the distribution of committ assignments by the house republican committee on committees, Representative Robsion is given the chairmanship of the committees on mines and mining. He advances to this position under the seniority rule by the retirement of Representative Rhodes, Missouri, who was chairman, and Representative Echols, West Virginia, who held second place on this committee in the last congress.

The placing of Representative Robsion in this chairmanship is regarded as of extreme importance to the coal mining industry not only in his own district in southeastern Kentucky, but also in the immediately adjacent fields of Eastern Tennessee and southwestern Virginia. Neither Tennessee nor Virginia has representation on the committee, republican or democratic.

A THOUGHT

REAPPOINTMENT OF H. H. ASHER

Thirty-one miles of state road, the last links necessary to join Bell County by a good, hard surface road with Lexington, and so with the north and middle west, were let Monday as one of the last acts of the State Highway Commission under the present administration. These pieces of road, the completion of which in the next year is called for by the contract, finish the road work started for Southeastern Kentucky by the Highway Commission, to whom this section owes an everlasting debt of gratitude.

To one man on this commission, H. H. Asher, namely, should Bell County be particularly grateful for his unflagging endeavor to obtain good roads for this section, so neglected in past administrations. Mr. Asher has been on the job from first to last, never selfishly holding out for his section over others which might need road improvements more, but always steadfastly keeping before the commission the needs of Southeastern Kentucky where good roads were almost unknown and in many parts of which travel by any other means than horseback was practically impossible.

Because of this work, we believe, we are backed by every progressive citizen in Southeastern Kentucky when we ask that Hugh Asher be named on the commission by Governor Fields, to serve another four years in the interest of good roads for the state. We believe that no other man could represent this section more fairly or more capably. And believe, too, that no other man could combine more happily than Mr. Asher an earnest interest in the welfare of the whole state the while he particularly safeguards the interests of his own section.

The new Highway Commission is to be appointed in the near future. Many organizations are asking for the reappointment of the entire present board; though it seems unlikely that Governor Fields intends to do this. He that as it may, we would especially urge that he consider seriously the appointment of Mr. Asher and that, if he seeks a man who will really represent this section of the state, he need look no further than the man who has held this position so ably the past four years.

SLEEP IS WORLD'S BEST MEDICINE

The greatest medicine in the world is sleep. The next best curative is to lie flat on your back and relax.

Some of our great men like to boast that they sleep only a few hours at night. That's because they don't need more sleep; their endocrine glands function unusually well— their general bodily recuperative powers are rapid; in a few hours they, in effect, recharge their batteries as much as the average person does in eight hours.

Most people need eight hours sleep. Many of us need more. And a lot of maladies, especially common colds and nervous ailments, are largely due to getting less sleep than is needed.

When you feel drowsy, nature is trying to tell you that your nerve cells have burned up their available fuel and become clogged with "ashes", waste products and poisons that can be eliminated only when the body relaxes in slumber. Probably you have seen people sleeping off a "jag"—alcoholic poisoning. Sleep does the same to poisons that accumulate naturally during active hours.

Every mechanic knows that machinery has to have regular periods of rest. Run it night and day and it wears out permaturely—the hours of its "life" or activity are decreased. So with the body.

The Persians in ancient times were the first people to have comfortable and beautiful beds. They appreciated the medicinal powers of sleep. And the old-time Greeks 2500 years ago helped their digestion by reclining on couches while eating slowly.

The worst investment in the world is a cheap, uncomfortable bed.

In winter we need an hour's more sleep than in the summer. Try the super-medicine, sleep or relaxing in bed without losing consciousness, when you are out of sorts with a cold or other ailment. It's the closest to a cure-all yet discovered.

Berton Braley's Poem

AN INVITATION

I'm giving a little party,
I've got a wonderful case of Scotch;
It's made out of lye and vitriol and I
Have timed its effect with a watch
One drink in ten seconds will stew you
Two drinks and you are ready for crime;
Three drinks and you're numb—so I'm hoping you'll come,

I know you are a regular fellow,
Come over and sample my gin,
I can't keep it long for the stuff is so strong
It eats through the bottles it's in.
But YOU aren't afraid to take chances,
And if it should blind you—why then
I'd know that the stuff was a little rough,
And I'd never use it again.

I'm giving a gay little party,
Come over and join us old chap.
There isn't a doubt that we will pass out
Except those you get in the scrap.
You'll surely be sick in the morning,
Unless you should perish tonight.
Come, on, join the stews hoisting bootlegger's booze
And all will be merry and bright!

Adventures of The Twins

HE SMOKES A PIPE THAT'S THICK AND LONG

"Make way for the Riddle Lady!" called Humpty Dumpty. "She's coming to ask another riddle."

"Who sits in a room
And never moves
But hisses, purrs and sputters,
He has four legs
Yet not an arm
And a dozen doors and shutters.

"He's black as a coal
And yet at times
He turns a fiery red.
He eats great chunks
Of coal or wood,
He certainly will feed.

"He's very smart
For he can cook
A meal to suit the like,
Can roast a duck
Or bake a cake,
And never spoil a thing.

"He smokes a pipe
That's thick and long,
And stretches to the wall,
But drops his ashes
In a pan,
And makes no dirt at all.

"If he's not fed
He catches cold
And has an awful chill.
Then matches are
His medicine,
And save a doctor bill.

"His habits are
As steady as
A sailor's beacon light;
Yet if you are
Not watching him
He'll go right out at night.

"He's loads of friends,
There's not a house,
From noblemen to peasant,
Where he's not welcome,
For, my dears,
He's useful, clean and pleasant."

"I'll let you know what it is," whispered Old King Cole to Nick, "if you throw the cover the minute I say and hit pipe stretched to the wall. There is only one person who has a pipe that's longer the name and that is—"

"I know what it is" shouted the Baker Man. "I knew it the minute you said that it could bake a cake. It's a—"

"It's a stove" said Nancy, who had gotten tired of so much talking.

"Right"; cried the Riddle Lady. "And the prize today is a party. Sit down everybody. The stove has everything ready except the ice cream."

AN INTIMATE STORY OF INNERMOST EMOTIONS REVEALED IN PRIVATE LETTERS
COPYRIGHT 1923 —NEA Service Inc.

LETTERS FROM MRS. JOSEPH GRAVES HAMILTON TO LESLIE PRESCOTT.

My Dear Daughter:

I can't understand why we have not received a letter from you lately. Your father said the other day with a queer little smile that he expected he would have to be dangerously ill again if he wanted to hear from you with any regularity. You were so faithful while he was ill that I expected that you got him into the bad habit of expecting a daily letter.

Of course, dear I know how it is because it is very human when we know our friends and relatives are perfectly well and happy to neglect them a little while pursuing our own health and happiness.

You may be surprised to learn that your father and I are going to London on the Mauretania, which sails on the tenth. I hope you will come down to see us off.

Your father is still far from well and I have persuaded him to give up all thoughts of business. Besides we are perhaps foolishly anxious to see our daughter in her presentation robes. Thing they must be very wonderful because she has been spending a great deal of money.

In any of her letters to you Leslie, has Alice intimated in any way that Karl is in love with her? Although she has said nothing to me on the subject I have some way got that impression. Of course I would be very happy, for I think, Alice has always had a great admiration and respect for Karl. Of course we all knew that Karl was hopelessly in love with you and if he had recovered and fallen in love with Alice, I am sure both your father and I would be delighted as we are both very fond of him.

She has been talking a great deal lately in my letters about a young Englishman and I would like to go over and see for myself what chances Karl has with her. You know, Leslie, that Alice is very headstrong about her own affairs, I have always felt, dear, that she was a little resentful of you in her great admiration for Karl she felt that you did not treat him right—in fact heard her say so—when you married John. Then she was so happy when he decided to go to England with her that I hoped at the time that she and Karl would make a match.

Lately, however, she has seemed to be a little worried about something and has kept asking questions about you and your affairs. Among other things she asked me if you had had your beads strung. I expect she means those pearl beads she gave you. I did not know you had broken them.

We are leaving day after tomorrow for New York and will be in town about a week. Do you suppose you could leave that blessed baby of yours in Nannie's care long enough to come and stay a day or two with us?

Telegraph me if it can be done.

A Christmas Warning

When to a child you wish to give a joy
And eventually you've found the proper thing,
'Twill add a lot to everybody's joy
If you take time to test your offering.

So blow it, squeeze it, see if it will wink
Or wind it up—whichever it may be;
You must be sure, you must not merely think
'Twill work for you before the presentee.

Should it consist of things which must be built,
Make sure that you can build them —every one;
That you won't feel a horrid sense of guilt
If later you are asked how they are done.

No greater disappointment is on earth
Than toys which do not function when they should;
As many a hope's been blighted at its birth
And many a giver's been misunderstood.

If you can't fly the air ship, or explain
The proper way to build the pyramid,
You'll be a sight that always causes pain;
A great big Grown-up shamed before a kid.

SISTER Mary's KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

It's amazing the sort of candy the perfectly inexperienced and imperfectly equipped candy maker can turn out in her own kitchen.

If you have a double boiler, a wooden spoon and a smooth porcelain sauce pan you can work wonders. A thermometer is desirable but not necessary. Molds and trays and racks and marble slabs and "dippers" facilitate the work to some extent but are not necessary.

The one absolute necessity for the success of many kinds of candy is a bright clear day. The required temperature may be artificial, supplied by the ice box, but the atmosphere must be dry. Do not attempt to make glace fruits under other conditions.

Nuts should be cracked and ready before the candy making is started.

Fondant should be made two or three days before dripping. Cover tightly in a bowl and let stand in a cool place.

The regulation of heat is important. Fondant should boil fast over a high flame. Caramels require a slow, steady heat. Nougats use two temperatures in their making. A nut brittle should be cooked over a slow fire, the flame being decreased and finally extinguished before removing from the pan.

Care must be taken in making a brittle of pure sugar. Sugar burns quickly after melted and the heat must be reduced to prevent the risk of fire. Burned fingers if nothing else might result.

Try the candy in a saucer of cold water, rather than a cup.

Fondant

Two cups granulated sugar, 1-8 teaspoon cream of tartar, ½ cup water.

Mix sugar and cream of tartar; add water. Stir until well mixed. Put over slow fire and bring to boiling point. Watch carefully that sugar does not burn on bottom of pan before it is dissolved. As crystals form on one side of pan wipe them off with a cloth dipped in cold water.

Have pan of water close to pan of sirup. Cover fingers with cloth and dip into water. Swab few crystals, dip into cold water. Continue this until sides are clear.

Cover and let boil rapidly two minutes. Remove cover and boil slowly, wiping down crystals as they form. Boil until a few drops tried in a saucer of cold water form soft ball when picked up with fingers. Ball must be firm enough to hold, but soft and pliable.

Remove instantly from fire and place pan in larger one of cold water. Let stand until cool. Beat with wooden spoon until creamy. When too stiff to beat turn onto a large platter and knead until soft.

Put in oiled bowl and let stand covered in cold place at least three hours.

Butter Creams

One-half cup fondant, 2 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon vanilla.

Work butter into fondant. Add vanilla and beat until thoroughly mixed. Put in covered bowl and let stand until firm. Form into marbles and let stand an hour or longer in cold place. Dip in chocolate.

Peppermint Wafers

Two drops oil of peppermint, ½ cup fondant.

Make fondant in flat cakes and put oil in center. Work with fingers or wooden spatula until smooth and thoroughly mixed. Let stand until firm and make into flat wafers the size of a half dollar. Dip in chocolate after standing until firm, or use uncoated.

Fruit and Nut Creams

Drain preserved cherries from their juice. There should be one quarter cup. Flavor fondant with vanilla; knead in chopped nuts and cherries. Use as many nuts as fondant will hold. Form into long roll, let stand until firm. Cut in small oblong or square block and dip in chocolate.

There are many, many shapes and sizes and it would really be difficult to describe them all unless we had the vocabulary of a Bard of Avon. What we will try to do is point out the features you will appreciate most.
In the first place none of these tables are "rickety" easily turned over. All have substantial bases.

Some are cabinet style, others are tray style. The tray styles have four legs to steady them and handles over the top by which they can be carried about the room. A few of the tray styles have as many as 4 ash trays and 4 match holders which are removable. Many have the copper lined humidores.

The woods are mahogany and walnut.

WHAT'S GOING ON IN THE WORLD

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

President Coolidge's message to Congress didn't start any national landslide his way anyhow.

It was crisp, businesslike, fairly out-spoken; for a presidential message, short. In general, it seems to have pleased conservatives. For the same reason more "advanced" people don't like it so well.

"I'M A TOUGH GUY!"

"Don't get gay with me", this pug-mascot for the U. S. Marines, probably is saying. The dog appeared at all football games played this season by the "devil dogs."

It wasn't the kind of message to make even those who disagree with it, very sore. It couldn't be described as a "clarion call", either.

* * *

Balance of Power

The "progressive bloc," holding the balance of power between the Republicans and Democrats in the House of Representatives, got busy as soon as Congress met.

It used to be possible for the House minority to delay the majority in carrying out policies the latter favored. The minority did it by so-called dilatory tactics. To stop this, a past majority fixed the rules so as to gag the minority when they become troublesome.

To avoid being gagged, the "progressive bloc" joined the Democrats in preventing the Republicans even from electing a speaker. Of course the Democrats enjoyed it. Finally the Republicans, in order to be able to do anything at all, agreed to change the rules to suit the "progressives." Then they were allowed to re-elect F. H. Gillett speaker.

A similar fight is yet to come in the Senate.

* * *

Wets and Drys

The president in his message, said, Prohibition should be made effective," but didn't "enthuse" over it.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon wants 320 new boats of various types, $39,650,000, plus enough more money to man them to help fight liquor smugglers.

Mrs. Mabel W. Willebrandt, assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition, announcing 58,121 criminal and civil liquor cases in the federal courts in the last fiscal year, speaks of this as "the most gigantic criminal problem the country ever faced."

Trouble in Mexico

Just as everybody thought Mexico had settled down, after years of revolution, trouble's started again.

The term of President Obregon, a strong executive, expires soon. He has been backing Elias Calles to succeed him. Now a revolt's started to put Obregon out, to keep Calles from getting in, and, seemingly to give the presidency to Adolfo de la Huerta.

Calles' slogan is "Mexico for the Mexicans." De la Huerta is popular with the foreigners in Mexico. May be it's only a coincidence that the revolt begins in the territory where foreign investments are the largest.

* * *

Free Trade Wins

England, free trade for nearly a century, has voted down protection again.

Premier Stanley Baldwin a Conservative, decided protection would relieve England's post-war hard times. To try the voters out, a national election was held. A ballot count gives the Conservatives more votes in the Parliament than either the Liberals or the Labor group, but the Liberals and Laborites combined have more than the Conservatives.

* * *

Can't Last Long

This means, though Baldwin got a plurality, that his main policy's beaten.

He may get a few Liberals to vote with the Conservatives on routine questions, so as to have enough of a majority to worry along with for a while as premier. More likely, he'll resign. If so, one of two things will happen:

1. The Liberals will get enough Laborites to give them a majority for transacting ordinary business and David Lloyd George, Liberal leader will be premier.

2. The Laborites will get a few Liberals to help them, and Ramsay MacDonald, Labor leader will be premier.

A partnership administration, like any of these can't last long, however.

Your Health

EFFECTS OF FEAR

The effect of fear on the physical condition of the body is different in the many types or characters of persons. There is, however, a direct psychologic and physiologic relation between fear and health.

Fear in man is caused by outside influences acting on the brain, spinal cord and nervous system. In many cases, it reduces the one afflicted to a condition of almost helplessness and loss of any real determining act in life's battle. Fear of his fellow men, fear of the loss of occupation and consequent poverty, fear of disease with partial or total loss of body efficiency, and fear of death, are some of the causes which determine your health condition.

Then there is the fear of some petty tyrant or loss in the business situation nagging or spying supervision, altitude that oft-times, from continuous drives one to distraction and a nervous wreck. And there is the fear of social disapproval by women.

Fear is also one of the determining factors in self-preservation, the first law of man. It is in this case not morbid. It is morbid only when inappropriate to the situation which provokes it. Many impressions of fear are formed in early childhood and are retained and carried through life, greatly to the detriment of health and individual success. "We lose so oft by fearing to attempt."

In another case the foundation of fear may sometimes be the result of the psychologic state of the body. When there is physical exhaustion, the tissues respond inadequately to situations requiring powerful and rapid reaction. The consciousness of this produces an unwillingness to face such situations, hence diffidence, disinterestedness or the "don't care" spirit. If this condition be oft repeated, the individual will become distrustful of himself. In this way, timorousness, diffidence and fear develop in ill-nourished children, under-fed women and over-driven, exhausted men.

Resolve to be thyself and know that he who finds himself loses his fear.

They Thought of You Last Summer, Why Not Remember Them Now?

Do you remember those hot, sultry summer days when hardly a breath of air was stirring—Then that "good old pal" drove up and invited you for a ride in his "bus". Out into the wide open country "you sped" and when you returned you were refreshed—Yes—You were "grateful" to him for his thoughtfulness. If those "memories" mean anything to you—What could be "sweeter" than to give him "something for the auto for Christmas"—a gift that will leave a lasting impression" of your appreciation. No wonder then Santa Claus says: "Give something for the auto for Christmas", but be sure to get it at Motch's.

Cigars for Christmas
Get It at Lee's

Then It Wouldn't Be Any Christmas Tree!

YOU know very well that a Christmas tree wouldn't be a Christmas tree without candy on it! Good candy! Plenty of candy! And the very best, you know, is home-made. 'Specially if you make it with Karo. So easy, too, and the most economical. Fudge—caramels—nearly any kind, made of delicious Karo, is simply delightful.

And Karo, either Blue or Red label, is good for children, too. Because it contains an unusually large percentage of the food element called Dextrose, Karo creates energy and vitality. With its big supply of Dextrose it builds health all through the blood and tissue cells. This flavory, nutritious syrup, will make this a healthy as well as a merry Christmas. And that's a good start on a happy New Year.

FREE—A booklet about Dextrose every mother should read. Explains why children thrive on Dextrose. Sent free with beautifully illustrated 64 page Cook Book. Write Corn Products Sales Co, 1814 Exchange Bldg, Memphis, Tenn.

GOODYEAR Service Station

THE best footing your car can get on rain-swept streets and slippery hills is the gripping All-Weather Tread of a Goodyear Tire. The high, thick, sharp-edged blocks of that famous tread take a slipless hold and hang on with a wedgelike action that prevents side-slip or skidding.

As Goodyear Service Station Dealers we sell and recommend the new Goodyear Cords with the beaded All-Weather Tread and back them up with standard Goodyear Service
